Publications and Working Papers

“Committee Expertise Formation.” Forthcoming. In Political Communication, Congress, and the Presidency, ed. Robert X. Browning. West Lafayette, IN: Purdue University Press.

Analyzes rhetorical diffusion in House select committee hearings (105th-114th Congresses), showing that semantic content, issue topics, and moral framing diffuse within and across party lines.

“Informal Mediation: Shared Issue Attention and Cross-Party Coordination in the U.S. House of Representatives, 1873-2010.” [Best Poster Prize, Political Networks (PolNet), 2026]

Constructs shared issue attention (SIA) networks from 138 years of U.S. House floor speeches, showing that partisan sorting of issue attention remains limited even in recent decades and that SIA increases bipartisan roll-call coordination, interacting with types of party pressure — using double machine learning and dynamic identification with dyadic cluster-robust inference.

“Contingent Congress: Non-Partisan Speech Diffusion in the U.S. House of Representatives, 1873-2010.”

Shows that speech content diffuses causally across party lines, using a double negative control design — challenging echo-chamber and majority agenda-control accounts.

“Extremists, Entertainers, or Experts? A Field Experiment on Congressional Incentives for Non-Electoral Representation.” With W. Minozzi & M. Neblo

A field experiment on deliberative town halls with House committee leaders (N = 15,734) showing that members of Congress persuade the public only on issues requiring policy expertise, rather than through blind deference to elites.

Work in Progress

“Social Influence in the National Assembly of South Korea.” With S. Kang, E. Cho & I. Ko

“Argumentativeness in House Committee Hearings.” With J. Park
